Michael Glennon is an Associate in the firm's Chemical/Materials Practice Group, with a focus on patent preparation and prosecution. Michael counsels clients on all aspects of intellectual property law, with a primary focus on patent matters including U.S., international, and foreign patent preparation and prosecution, as well as patentability, infringement, and clearance investigations. Michael has experience in a variety of technology areas, with a primary focus in the chemical arts.

Michael received his B.S. in Chemistry and a minor in Physics from Indiana University, where he completed his honors thesis on electrochemical properties of layered double hydroxides. Prior to attending law school, Michael worked in a research lab investigating inorganic nanomaterials including semiconductor and porous materials.

Michael received his J.D. from the Indiana University Maurer School of Law, where he graduated cum laude with a certificate in Cybersecurity Law and Policy. While a law student, Michael was a founding member of the Volunteering in Intellectual Property Pro Bono organization, participated in the Intellectual Property Clinic, and competed in the American Intellectual Property Law Association moot court competition.
