Randy Jackson is the firm's Chemical/Biotech/Materials Science Practice Group Leader. He is a registered patent attorney with over 20 years of intellectual property experience. While involved in all phases of intellectual property representation, his expertise is heavily concentrated in the chemical/chemical engineering arts, with a primary emphasis on patent preparation and prosecution, both domestic and foreign. He manages significant patent portfolios for large and medium-sized public and private clients covering a number of technological areas, including green/clean technologies, such as corn to fuel ethanol and green thermoplastics, along with textiles for the health and hospitality industries, cutting edge semiconductors/chemical processing, pharmaceuticals/small molecules, dental adhesives, and rubber compounding/tire technologies, for example. Previously, Randy worked as an analytical chemist at a pharmaceutical testing company in St. Louis, Missouri. He joined Wood, Herron & Evans in 2004, is a Cincinnati native, and an avid soccer fan.
